ABOUT APOLLO

Apollo Micro Systems Ltd is a pioneer in design, development, assembly and testing of electronic and electro mechanical solutions.

AI FORENSIC DEEP-DIVE

Apollo Micro Systems shows dazzling growth and momentum but trades at a historically extreme premium and carries a red flag for earnings quality.

STRENGTHS

- ▶ PAT (profit after tax) CAGR of 77.9% over 3 years and 60.7% over 5 years - among the fastest in its sector.
- ▶ Strong momentum: 1-year CAGR 123%, 3-year CAGR 133% and RS rating 99 (top of market).
- ▶ Robust balance sheet: Altman Z-score 4.38 (safe) and debt-to-equity 0.41.
- ▶ Capital allocation score of 70, indicating disciplined reinvestment and shareholder returns.
- ▶ Risk-adjusted returns are solid - Sharpe 1.48 and Sortino 3.12 despite high volatility.

RISKS / WEAKNESSES

- ▶ Current PE of 200 (and EV/EBITDA 200) sits at the top of its own historical range and is five times the sector median, implying severe overvaluation.
- ▶ Beneish M-score of -1.76 flags a high risk of earnings manipulation.
- ▶ No sustainable moat and a Piotroski score of 7 (neutral) suggest limited accounting strength.
- ▶ Business Quality Score (58.5) trails peer leaders who sit in the high-70s to low-80s.
- ▶ High annualised volatility (55.6%) and beta of 1.38 mean the stock swings more than the market.

Apollo scores a solid 7 on the Piotroski test, but its Beneish M-score of -1.76 pushes it into the "Manipulator (High Risk)" category, raising concerns about earnings integrity. The Altman Z-score of 4.38 confirms financial safety, and a debt-to-equity of 0.41 underscores a healthy balance sheet. However, the company lacks a competitive moat and its Business flag for earnings quality.

STRENGTHS

- ▶ PAT (profit after tax) CAGR of 77.9% over 3 years and 60.7% over 5 years - among the fastest in its sector.
- ▶ Strong momentum: 1-year CAGR 123%, 3-year CAGR 133% and RS rating 99 (top of market).
- ▶ Robust balance sheet: Altman Z-score 4.38 (safe) and debt-to-equity 0.41.
- ▶ Capital allocation score of 70, indicating disciplined reinvestment and shareholder returns.
- ▶ Risk-adjusted returns are solid - Sharpe 1.48 and Sortino 3.12 despite high volatility.

Apollo scores a solid 7 on the Piotroski test, but its Beneish M-score of -1.76 pushes it into the "Manipulator (High Risk)" category, raising concerns about earnings integrity. The Altman Z-score of 4.38 confirms financial safety, and a debt-to-equity of 0.41 underscores a healthy balance sheet. However, the company lacks a competitive moat and its Business Quality Score of 58.5 is modest compared with peers that score above 78. Combined with a very high valuation (PE and EV/EBITDA at the top of its own history), the picture is mixed: strong growth and cash generation but significant red flags on price and earnings quality.

The stock's PE of 200 is at the 100th percentile of its own historical range (41.7-200) and is classified as "Very Expensive"—far above the sector median PE of 40.3. EV/EBITDA mirrors this pattern. Even though the absolute PE of 133 is high, being at the extreme high end of its own history means the stock is cheap only relative to an already inflated past, not relative to peers. In short, the valuation is markedly overvalued versus both its history and the sector.

RISKS / WEAKNESSES

- ▶ Current PE of 200 (and EV/EBITDA 200) sits at the top of its own historical range and is five times the sector median, implying severe overvaluation.
